"I believe in NORTH CAROLINA it's people and its values"

Dan Forest was raised in Charlotte and built a career in Raleigh as an architect and businessman. Beginning as a college intern, Dan rose to office president and senior partner of the state's largest architectural firm.

He left that successful career in 2012, when he was elected as Lieutenant Governor. Four years later, Dan was re-elected by a 300,000 vote margin, becoming the first Lieutenant Governor in North Carolina history to garner more votes than both the winning Governor and the winning Presidential candidate.

As Lieutenant Governor, Dan has been an outspoken advocate for policies that drive economic growth, create jobs and spur innovation.

He has worked tirelessly on initiatives that protect the most vulnerable in our society and has established a reputation as a leader in the educational choice movement — seeking excellence in education for all children regardless of their race, socioeconomic background or ZIP code.

Over the last six months, I have been solely focused on leading Vermont through this once-in-a-century challenge. I've tracked the data closely, listened to the experts and followed the science. Every decision I've made has been in the best interest of our health, our safety and our economic future.

I'm so proud of how Vermonters have stepped up to support our neighbors and communities – and as a result, our state has been an example for others across the country, with one of the most effective responses.

As we rebuild and recover, my priorities will continue to be growing the economy, making Vermont more affordable and protecting the most vulnerable. These principles have served us well over the last four years and we cannot afford to change course now.

I pledge to do my very best to provide you with a steady hand on the wheel as we navigate this crisis, while working tirelessly to make sure we emerge stronger as a state. Phil
